Dear Senators Blumenthal and Baldwin and Representatives Chu, Fudge, and Frankel:

As national, state, and local organizations committed to women's reproductive health, rights, and justice, we write in support of the Women's Health Protection Act of 2015.

Despite the clear constitutional rights established more than four decades ago in the landmark Supreme Court decision Roe v. Wade, each year politicians across the country pass harmful restrictions in an effort to roll back a woman's right to make the best health care decisions for herself and her family. Any one of these restrictions imposed on health care providers and abortion services can have a devastating impact on the women affected by it. But when all of these various attempts to block access to abortion work together, the effect is often catastrophic—making a range of essential reproductive health care virtually impossible to obtain for far too many women.

Every pregnant woman faces her own unique circumstances and potential challenges, and she must be able to make her own decisions based on her personal values, the advice of the medical professionals she trusts, and what's right for her family. In recent years, however, politicians have increasingly sought new ways to interfere with personal decision-making and undermine women's access to abortion care. State legislatures have been more active than ever in passing burdensome requirements that single out abortion providers and services and do nothing to advance women's health or safety —and, in fact, ultimately jeopardize women's health. States enacted over 230 dangerous and unnecessary restrictions on abortion between 2011 and 2014, more than in the previous decade combined.

Examples of restrictions on abortion that have been enacted with increasing frequency in recent years that single out abortion services and impede access include:

• Requirements that health care providers perform tests and procedures even if they are not medically necessary;

- Measures that force health care providers to follow outdated medical guidelines rather than follow the current standard of care;
- Prohibitions on expanding access to women in rural areas through telemedicine;
- Requirements imposed on abortion clinics that normally apply to hospitals or ambulatory surgical centers;
- Requirements that physicians at abortion clinics maintain admitting privileges at local hospitals, despite the safety of abortion and the fact that admitting privileges are not necessary in the event of a complication;
- Measures that require a woman seeking an abortion to make multiple unnecessary trips to the abortion provider;
- Making a woman visit an anti-abortion "crisis pregnancy center;" and
- Bans on abortion prior to viability some as early as six weeks in clear violation of the Supreme Court decision in Roe v Wade.

A woman's constitutional rights should not depend on her zip code. But the legislative attacks on reproductive health care have made it so that women in some parts of the country have diminished access to essential reproductive health care. We need a federal law that would make these restrictions unlawful, thus allowing medical providers to do the important work of providing safe, legal, high-quality health care to all women across the country. We need the Women's Health Protection Act. We commend you for your leadership in reintroducing this critical legislation and pledge our support in working toward its passage.
